Introduction

Asian DME Conference started since 2004 as an annual event being organized among trilateral DME associations (China DME Association, Korea DME Association and Japan DME Forum) in rotation. After the annual Asian DME Conference series and the biennial International DME conference series merged to create joint DME event in Shanghai, China in 2008, Asian DME Conference became the biennial event. Now these two DME events are held alternately every two years, respectively.

Japan DME Forum will take our turn at organizing the conference in Niigata in 2011 bringing together all the industry's representative bodies and many of their members. The conference language is English.

In addition to two days conference, the event also included site visit to Japan's first commercial DME production, distribution and one of the world first industrial DME user facilities in and around Niigata.
